Certification Programs

The information I'd collected last year on the certifications available for Stormwater Professionals are listed below. These certifications are nationally recognized and readily available in different formats. One item to note is that Arizona doesn't require certification for anyone holding responsibility for stormwater compliance, inspection, SWPPP preparation, etc. This may change as more states are beginning to implement requirements for certification, either by accrediting the existing programs, or developing their own programs.

The APWA CSM program deals mainly with regulatory and administrative coordination and implementation of stormwater management programs for city, county, state, provincial, and federal agencies. This certification would be ideal for the Environmental Division Stormwater Program analyst.

For the construction inspectors, the EnviroCert CESSWI program is very widely accepted, available in AZ annually, and is used by some states as a certification requirement for inspectors.

The National Stormwater Center (NPDES) program referenced below would be beneficial since the cost is reasonable and available locally, but is not the likely candidate for acceptance by Arizona since it is not as widely accepted as the EnviroCert programs.
